COURSE DESCRIPTION

Mental health policy, once described as the ‘orphan child’ of Medicare (Romanow, 2002), has increasingly come to the attention of politicians and society at large. Increasingly, there is a recognition that people suffering from various forms of mental distress struggle to access care and supports and are often stigmatized in the process. At the same time inequities in Canada are widening and the social and structural determinants of mental health related to things like income security, housing and experiences of discrimination go unrecognized as contributing significantly to mental well-being. Indeed, mental health care itself has often been experienced as coercive and oppressive especially by people further marginalized by sexism, racism, colonialism, heterosexism, poverty and ableism. In this course, we center the lives of people who have experienced mental distress, as a way of epistemologically and ethically valuing what experience can offer policy and practice.

In the course, we will look at historical and contemporary approaches to mental health and how this influences policy and practice responses at the federal, provincial and international level- including, for example, deinstitutionalization, community-based care, trans-institutionalization and recovery approaches. We will critically examine the dominance of biomedicalism and how this intersects with current neoliberal policy regimes to individualize mental health problems and decontextualize them from the broader social and structural determinants of health. We will explore a number of approaches to mental health including rights-based approaches, intersectional approaches and Mad study approaches.
COURSE LEARNING OBJECTIVES

By the end of the course students will be able to:

1. Understand the epistemological significance of lived experience of mental distress for policy, research and practice;
2. Explain how axes of marginalization and power (e.g., gender, race, colonialism, social class, sexual orientation, ability) intersect to influence mental health and well-being;
3. Critically assess frameworks and approaches to mental health;
4. Engage in policy analysis and debates in mental health using a social justice framework that involves rights-based, intersectional and Mad studies approaches

The course will be run as a senior seminar and will require the active engagement of students. Students should come to class having read the course material and be prepared to discuss the readings in depth. The course is split into 4 sections: Foregrounding Social Justice for Mental Health; Policy Histories; Mental Health and Social Policy: Issues and Debates and Looking to the Future. In our work together we will be learning about critical policy analysis tools for the purpose of improving policy and practice responses to mental health and substance use.

Required books:
*Note that these books are available in the bookstore and on reserve in the library

Recommended books:

WRITING ABILITY AND ACADEMIC LITERACY VIDEOS
You need to write well to do well in this course. If you have trouble writing, then it is very strongly suggested that you get assistance from the writing centre.

Writing and Learning Skills:

The Writing Centre (S329 Ross)
- You need to be able to write to earn a good grade in this course. Writing support is available from the Writing Centre. The Writing Centre gets very busy, especially before essays are due so making appointments in advance is highly recommended.

The Learning Commons (Scott Library)
- The Learning Commons brings together key supports for your learning: writing, research, learning skills and career services.

Learning Skills Services (N110 Bennett Centre)
- If you are not getting the marks you had hoped for or are finding it difficult to keep up with your studies Learning Skills Services can help you learn how to study more effectively.

MOODLE
The course outline will be posted on our Moodle course website. Moodle can also be used by all of us to share relevant written material, links to websites, video, media, etc., Course announcements will also be put on Moodle.

GRADING SCALE
The following grading scale is used in this class:

<td>Participation</td>
<td>Each week you are expected to come prepared to critically engage in discussion about how the readings contribute to debates related to mental health, equity and policy. Prepare your ideas in an overview paper of no more than 2 pages (500 words max) to be submitted at the beginning of each class. You should print a second copy for yourself so you can use it as the basis for class discussion each week. These papers will not be returned or formally graded, but along with your discussion in class, will form your participation grade. Each student will be required to lead a discussion of one or two of the readings over the semester (a sign up sheet will be circulated in class). Your weekly summaries and in-class presentations of readings should address 4 questions: 1. What are the main ideas being discussed? 2. What assumptions is/are the author(s) using? 3. How do these readings address mental health/substance use equity issues? 4. How can the ideas be applied to policy and/or practice?</td>

| 25% Presentations on January 27th in class Papers due: February 3rd |
| Policy Analysis Paper | Identify a mental health and/or substance use policy, piece of legislation or policy framework (e.g., the Mental Health Commission of Canada’s Mental Health Strategy, the Ontario Mental Health Act, LHIN regional mental health plan ....) and using one of the policy analysis frameworks that you have been introduced to in class (GBA, Intersectionality, WPR, etc., ) discuss the following questions:

1) How is the social problem identified and represented?
2) What are the assumptions underlying the problem representation?
3) What policy/practice solutions flow from this representation?
4) In your analysis identify the equity dimensions of the policy (e.g., Does the policy impact different groups in society in different ways. Does the policy discriminate against particular groups or individuals?).
5) Give an assessment as to whether the policy that has been developed has been a success, a failure, a partial success, etc. and why you have come to that conclusion.
6) Make suggestions about what would strengthen the policy response. | 35% | Due: April 6th |
EVALUATION

LATE ASSIGNMENTS
Late assignments will be penalized with 1% deduction for every day of delay (including weekends). All assignments more than seven days late will receive a zero. If you think that you are going to be late in handing in an assignment talk to the course instructor ahead of time. Extensions will only be granted for serious medical reasons or reasons related to unforeseen circumstances.

IMPORTANT COURSE INFORMATION

LATE ASSIGNMENTS -- DEFERRED STANDING & EXTENSION POLICY

1.1. Assignments are due by 11:30 pm on the day indicated above. Assignments that are not handed in by this deadline are graded as late.

1.2. Late assignment penalties are 1% per day late, including weekends. Assignments must be submitted via Turnitin. They are marked online. Assignments emailed directly will NOT be accepted.

1.3. The counseling office has resources to help students address non-medical reasons that delay completion of course work and exams (refer to academic accommodation policy below).

1.4. An Attending Physician’s Statement form is required for all late assignments when a deferred late penalty is requested:

   1.4.1. Doctor’s notes indicating a student was “seen in the office” on a specific date WILL NOT be accepted as sufficient excuse for late assignments or missed exams. Only original medical documentation with an original signature is acceptable. This form must be completed and signed by the student’s physician to be sufficient grounds for lateness. All forms must be delivered directly to the Course Director’s York University office (HNES 411) or to Rm 409 HNES (Collette Murray).

ACADEMIC ACCOMMODATION FOR STUDENTS WITH DISABILITIES

York University shall make reasonable and appropriate accommodations and adaptations in order to promote the ability of students with disabilities to fulfill the academic requirements of their programs.

The nature and extent of accommodations shall be consistent with and supportive of the integrity of the curriculum and of the academic standards of programs or courses.
Provided that students have given sufficient notice about their accommodation needs, instructors shall take reasonable steps to accommodate these needs in a manner consistent with the guidelines established hereunder.

'Disabilities' shall be defined as those conditions so designated under the Ontario Human Rights Code in force from time to time, and will in any event include physical, medical, learning, and psychiatric disabilities.

ACADEMIC HONESTY & INTEGRITY

According to the York Senate Policy on Academic Honesty:

Academic honesty requires that persons do not falsely claim credit for the ideas, writing or other intellectual property of others, either by presenting such works as their own or through impersonation.

Similarly, academic honesty requires that persons do not cheat (attempt to gain an improper advantage in an academic evaluation), nor attempt or actually alter, suppress, falsify or fabricate any research data or results, official academic record, application or document.

Any acts of academic dishonesty including plagiarism, re-submitting the same paper or portions of the same paper to more than one course, or failure to cite sources are taken seriously and handled according to York University Policy. For details, please refer to the Faculty of Graduate Studies website and the Senate Policy on Academic Policy. I strongly recommended you complete York University’s online Academic Integrity Tutorial, which is designed to help students learn how to avoid committing plagiarism.

Alternatively, you can refer to the document entitled Beware - Says who? Avoiding plagiarism. The document was developed by the University of Ottawa and describes what academic integrity and intellectual property rights are, the definition of plagiarism along with several examples, discusses what pressures lead to plagiarism and how to avoid it, identifies good practices to engage in to avoid plagiarism, and provides many examples and important information.

Faculty members are encouraged to pursue suspected cases of academic honesty with formal charges. Students should, however, review the York Academic Honesty policy for themselves.

Grade Component Deadline (Senate Policy)

The course assignment structure and grading scheme (i.e. kinds and weights of assignments, essays, exams, etc.) must be announced, and be available in writing, to students within the first two weeks of classes.

Feedback Policy (Senate Policy)

Under normal circumstances, some graded feedback worth at least 15% per cent of the final grade for Fall, Winter or Summer term, and 30% for ‘full year’ courses in the Fall/Winter term should be received by students in all courses prior to the final withdrawal date from a course without receiving a grade, with the following exceptions:

- Graduate or upper level undergraduate courses where course work typically, or at the instructor’s discretion, consists of a single piece of work and/or is based predominantly (or solely) on student presentations;
- Practicum courses;
- Ungraded courses;
- Courses in Faculties where the drop date occurs within the first three weeks of classes;
- Courses that run on a compressed schedule (a course which accomplishes its academic credits of work at a rate of one credit hour per two calendar weeks or faster).

Note: Under unusual and/or unforeseeable circumstances, which disrupt the academic norm, instructors are expected to provide grading schemes and academic feedback in the spirit of these regulations, as soon as possible. Visit the Graded Feedback Rule for more information.
